DR. L. SUBRAMANIAM'S Orchestral Vocks

INDIAN (RAGA) BASED COMPOSITIONS

Press Reviews from Magazines, Newpapers, Media

"The New York Philharmonic featured... compositions that linked traditional and Indian and Western... and orchestral piece by Indian violinist L. Subramaniam... a blend of simple South Indian melodies... heavily bowed symphonic passages and improvisational interchange of short rhythmic riffs... Subramaniam's work was the liveliest offering." - TIME MAGAZINE

It would be a mistake to typecast Subramaniam as an Indian musician trying to Americanize himself... his writing... succeeded in ignoring and transcending whatever boundary lines that exist between Eastern and Western composition." - LOS ANGELES TIMES

"Subramaniam ... very successfully manages to bring East and West together. The composer violinist showed off some astounding virtuosity. It (Fantasy on Vedic Chants) is a highly colourful and attractive piece. It's a tremendous showpiece, given the fabulous microtonal fiddle playing of the composer and ought to bring the house down anywhere. It did Thursday night." - NEW YORK POST

...the world premiere... written at the request of (Zubin) Mehta and the orchestra – made up the Indian portion of Thursday's concert. L. Subramaniam's "Fantasy on Vedic Chants" proved a big hit with the audience.

- DAILY NEWS, New York

"Positively dazzling... he achieved a delicate balance of all these factors (technique, sense of structure, development, soul and intensity). He balanced wrenchingly beautiful melodic exposition with tumbling multi-noted cascades... within the context of a sinuous elegance that made his improvisations seem exceptionally coherent."

- NEW YORK TIMES

With just a violin at his command, Dr. L. Subramaniam has transcended all cultural and geographic barriers... Lakshminarayana Subramaniam's slender shoulders do not seem strong enough to carry the weight of the accolades that have been heaped upon him... Subramaniam's violin seemed to have the effect of an entire orchestra. - SPAN MAGAZINE

He has even been compared with Jascha Heifetz. Both have taken their respective musical traditions to greater heights.

- AKERSHUS ARBEIDERBLAD, Norway

An Unbelievable masterpiece... Global Symphony - BZ, Germany

"Global Symphony is the most successful experiment to bring... music cultures together"

- NEUES DEUTSCHLAND, Germany The "Fantasy" received a standing ovation at every performance. A standing ovation for the startling Indian violin playing. - CASHBOX MAGAZINE, USA

The most interesting of the evening was certainly L. Subramaniam's Violin Concerto No. 1, with the composer as soloist. This demonstrated that East and West could work together on the concert platform despite their very different musical traditions...the string sections of the orchestra were evidently astounded at the characteristics of Subramaniam's playing - SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST, Hong Kong

(Fantasy on Vedic Chants) a composition of symphonic grandeur, significantly centered around ... the Vedic tritone armature to wind a bewildering fabric of tonal colours and densities that opened vistas of orchestral opportunities for Western and Karnatic mingling. Subramaniam's composition is vital, rich in texture faithful to the Raga's scalar integrity ... with gleaming vertical clusters of notes that waved in the wind of the composition's passage like coral fans under the sea. When the violins and the winds lifted off the surface of Subramaniam's solo sections of virtuoso power and hypnotic symmetry, the orchestra seemed to become disembodied and ethereal.

- INDIAN EXPRESS, New Delhi

A great performance. It is surely a tribute to L. Subramaniam that even after Tchaikovsky's Fifth Symphony, the audiences were driven to a feverish pitch of excitement by his works. His musical sensitivity, transcending geographic - cultural barriers, and his thorough grasp of orchestration made it possible for him to interweave and juxtapose the Indian and western idioms without a jar. - INDIAN POST, Mumbai

With his magic bow working at the speed of light, he had members of the Beijing opera looking over their shoulders to see how on earth he managed to create such sounds out of the violin.

- SCREEN, India

Subramaniam's "Fantasy" steals the show

- HINDUSTAN TIMES, New Delhi

Audiences rave with standing ovations, critics trip over themselves to find superlatives... Violinists could break fingers trying to imitate his technique... Subramaniam's work is explosive and exciting with a touch of the exotic and an eternal quest for excellence.

- SIGNATURE MAGAZINE, South Africa

I find nothing more inspiring than the music making of my very great colleague Subramaniam. Each time I listen to him, I am carried away in wonderment.

- Lord Yehudi Menuhin The God of Indian Violin

- The Times of India

L. Subramaniam is the best this listener has heard

- The New York Times

L. Subramaniam, greatest of classical Indian violinists, was both Paganini and Poet

- San Francisco Chronicle

Biography

Violin icon Dr. L. Subramaniam has been recognized as the foremost Indian composer of orchestral music. Though he was registered as a medical practitioner he opted to continue his passion for music by doing his masters in western music from California Institute of the Arts, USA. Taking inspiration from his Indian Classical music roots, he set about to create a new style of orchestral writing. He holds a PhD in Raga Harmony which is a unique concept he developed bringing together Indian ragas with western harmony to create numerous orchestral compositions.

From 1983 onwards, Subramaniam has written over thirty orchestral works including symphonies, concertos, and double concertos. He has also composed for full orchestra, choir and non-western instruments, where the solo instruments can be replaced to bring out different tonalities from the same composition every time it is performed. This was a major milestone in orchestral writing.

He has worked with great conductors including Maestros Zubin Mehta, Vladimir Fedoseyev, Jean Claude Casedesus, Michael Helmrath, and Aivars Lakstigala.

He has composed and performed with orchestras in various parts of the world from Africa to Australia, Europe and the Americas, at venues like the Lincoln Center, Barbican, Dorothy Chandler Pavilion, the Beijing National Center for Performing Arts, Zhongshan Music Hall, the Tchaikovsky Hall, Jay Pritzker Pavilion in Millennium Park, Olso Philharmonic Concert Hall, and the Gewandhaus. He has also taken his orchestral music to small cities and towns as far as Sibiu, Bodo and Slupsk.

In most of these orchestral concerts the entire evening has been dedicated to Dr. L. Subramaniam's compositions.

Dr. Subramaniam is one of the few living composers with close to 300 live performances & recordings of his various orchestral works, a testament to his unique and original work as a composer. Most of his orchestral music recordings have been released in all audio/video formats. Dr. Subramaniam's orchestral compositions are available through Schott Music Publishing.
